The 30 Channel Display registers the emergency call from each transmitter device (see below) and sends the call to the pager. Meaning you can be in the garden and be aware of the movement inside whether the person is getting out of bed, in an area not deemed safe or opening an exterior door. It is supplied with a power pack but can also be battery operated.

The reset button cancels an emergency call, allowing you to exit through alarmed doors or area's not deemed safe without having to go to the 30 Channel Display.

The door reed switch allows you to be aware of a door being opened.

The wireless floor mat is designed to immediately alert that a person has exited their bed. Being wireless there are no leads to trip over. During the day this floor mat can be moved to other positions around the home, for example at a doorway to notify the carer of someone exiting a particular room or at the front door.

The PIR (motion sensor) can be used in a room not deemed safe or alert you of the person getting up from bed.

The pager will let you know once an alarm has been triggered and where, allowing you to be out in the garden etc

The case will protect your pager. It has a clip on back and a magnetic flip cover.
